

CONSIDERING A DRY RETROFIT?

Replace Your Old Travaini, Nash, or Graham Vacuum Pumps with DRYVac Dry Compressors from Busch.

More and more clients are getting tired of having to replace or rebuild their liquid ring vacuum pumps every couple of years. This is expensive, both in terms of direct cost, and in terms of terminal downtime. With wholesale gasoline prices at all time highs, no terminal manager wants to be shut down for any reason.

So, more and more terminal operators are looking at retrofitting with Busch DRYVac compressors. Here are a few reasons why:

- 3-5 times longer life
- 30% electrical savings
- No glycol to handle ... ever again
- Simplified, less costly maintenance
- Much better performance

This list goes on and on. If you want to talk about taking advantage of this proven 21st century retrofit opportunity, or you just want to learn more about it, please call Tim Hammond at 317-872-4321 today.

Why Choose Busch DRYVac Compressors?

Aren't all dry compressors the same? No! They are NOT! You've seen or heard of dry screw compressors being applied in vapor recovery systems. You've also heard the horror stories about their short life and VERY noisy operations.

Well, for the last decade Symex has been using Busch compressors exclusively in vapor recovery applications all over the world, and not one single compressor has been replaced, so far! No downtime! No replacement costs! Over 300 Busch DRYVac compressors installed in over 120 Symex vapor recovery systems ... without a failure!

That's a pretty good reason to switch to DRYVac compressors from SYMEX Americas, a wholly owned division of TESCO.
